PART ONE | INTRODUCTION

Animal Charity Evaluators is a nonprofit organization dedicated to finding and advocating for highly effective opportunities to help animals. One of the ways we do this is by evaluating animal charities. We share our findings on our website and encourage donors to give to the charities that will do the most good with their donations.

Our evaluation process runs from July to November. Participation in the process has four basic stages. First, we set up initial voice or video conversations with members of leadership at each charity. Second, we request follow-up information and documents. Third, we notify charities of their recommendation status and send out drafts of our reviews, soliciting feedback. Finally, we publish our reviews. Here is a timeline of the most important parts of our process:

Please note that this schedule is subject to change.

This handbook details our evaluation process as well as our policies and procedures. There is a section for frequently asked questions at the end. If you have any other questions that are not addressed there, please feel free to contact your evaluation liaison or any of the following people:

Toni Adleberg, Charity Evaluation Manager: toni.adleberg@animalcharityevaluators.org

Jon Bockman, Executive Director: jon.bockman@animalcharityevaluators.org

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

1.1 | Invitation to Participate

Each year we invite a group of highly promising charities to participate in our evaluation process. We work hard to make our evaluations as beneficial as possible for the charities we evaluate. Participating in our process demonstrates to donors that your organization thinks strategically and actively seeks ways to improve your work. If your organization is selected as a Top or Standout Charity, we will help you promote it to donors as one of the most effective animal charities in the world. We are also happy to offer participation grants to all charities who make a good faith effort to work with us towards the publication of a review.

1.2 | Stage One: Phone Conversation

The first stage of our evaluation process is to schedule a phone conversation with one of our researchers by July 20, 2018. The conversation will last approximately one hour and will cover topics related to your organization, such as:

- Strengths and weaknesses
- Fundraising and strategic goals
- Leadership and decision making
- Staff development and morale

We will write up a summary of the conversation, which you will have a chance to approve before we publish it on our website alongside your review.

1.3 | Stage Two: Information and Documents

To supplement and corroborate information gathered during our conversation, we will request several other sources of information about each comprehensively reviewed charity. We will also conduct two confidential calls with members of your organization who are not in leadership positions, and (with your permission) will send an organizational culture survey to a core group of your staff and/or volunteers. We do not require that your employees take the survey or share any particular piece of information with us, but sharing as much information as possible will aid us in writing our reviews.

1.4 | Stage Three: Feedback and Approval Process

Though our schedule is subject to change, we plan to send comprehensively reviewed charities a draft of their review in October. All charities will have one week in which to correct any factual errors and/or request that we remove confidential information from the review. If you are not happy with our review of your organization for any reason, you may choose to withdraw it from publication.

1.5 | Stage Four: Publication

When we send the draft of your organization's review, we will also notify you of your organization's recommendation status. We publish our updated reviews each year on the night before Giving Tuesday: this year that will be Monday November 26, 2018.

1.6 | Our Continuing Relationship

We hope that each new evaluation is just the beginning of a long working relationship with each charity. If we select your organization as a Top or Standout Charity, we will promote it for the next year (for Top Charities) or two years (for Standout Charities). We will feature it on our website, in our promotional materials, on social media, and in presentations. We will also fundraise on your behalf, provide you with your donors' contact information every two months, and distribute donations to you twice per year. We will send you ACE-approved "badge" graphics for use in your promotional materials, newsletters, websites, or however you see fit.

INVITATION TO PARTICIPATE

In July of each year, we invite a group of charities to participate in our evaluation process. At a minimum, this group includes:

- ACE Top Charities
- ACE Standout Charities that we did not review in the previous year
- Some comprehensively reviewed charities whose reviews are out of date
- Some new (or new to us) charities that seem promising

2.1 | Benefits of Participation

We aim to secure a high level of participation in our evaluation process, and we've designed our process with the goal of maximizing the benefits for those charities who participate. As you know, many donors are looking for independent charitable impact reviews, and ACE is one of the resources they turn to for thorough reviews of animal charities. Having a review of your organization on our website will strengthen the trust that your current and potential donors have in your work because it indicates that you are interested in evaluating your impact and effectiveness.

This year we are happy to offer small grants to compensate you for your time spent participating in the review process. We will be sending grants of $500 to those charities that participate in our shorter (exploratory) reviews, and we will be sending grants of $2,000 to those charities that are selected for and participate in our longer (comprehensive) reviews.

If we select your organization as a Top or Standout Charity, there are additional benefits. In 2017, we influenced over $6 million to our recommended charities—an average of $930,000 to each Top Charity and an average of $100,000 to each Standout Charity. We provide our recommended charities with high-value donors; the average gift to our recommended charities in 2017 was $764. In 2018, we aim to influence $7.5 million to our recommended charities. If you'd like to read more about our impact on charitable giving, please refer to our 2016 Giving Metrics Report. (Our 2017 report is forthcoming.)

2.2 | Other Considerations

For some charities, choosing whether or not to participate in our evaluation process is a difficult decision. Here are six reasons why some charities decline to be evaluated:

- They are too busy during our evaluation season to participate in the review process
- They prefer to wait until the following year to be evaluated (e.g., because they are developing a new program or bringing on new staff)
- They disagree with our evaluation criteria, methodology, and/or philosophy
- They do not support our decision to evaluate charities relative to one another
- They do not consider themselves to be an animal charity
- They do not currently have a significant need for more funding

If you are unsure whether these (or similar) reasons apply to your organization or whether they outweigh the benefits of participating in our process this year, we would be happy to discuss the decision with you.

PART TWO | EVALUATION PROCESS

STAGE ONE: PHONE CONVERSATION

Each charity that is invited to participate in our evaluation process will be assigned an evaluation liaison from our research team. This liaison will be your first point of contact for all matters related to evaluation, though they will not be the sole author of your review. (The drafting of each review is a highly collaborative process in which the majority of our research team participates.)

The first stage of our evaluation process is a phone conversation between one or more members of your organization's leadership team and your evaluation liaison. Your liaison will contact you in July 2018 to set up a call on or before July 20, 2018.

3.1 | Conversation Parameters

Conversations usually take place over Skype or Google Hangouts. However, we are happy to speak with you by phone or using another method, if you prefer. We do our best, however, to conduct all conversations via voice or video calls (rather than by email) to ensure consistency between reviews and to place a limit on the amount of time required of each charity.

According to our most recent survey of charities we have comprehensively evaluated, participating in our evaluation process takes about 30 hours, on average. If you find that your organization is spending significantly longer than that, please let us know so we can discuss ways to reduce your time commitment.

We are happy to work with anyone whom you choose to represent your organization. We recommend selecting someone who is involved in all or most aspects of your organization, and who therefore has a broad vision of your organization's activities. We also recommend selecting someone who is able to make decisions about what type of information can be shared with us. In the past, for example, we have conducted phone interviews with executive directors or other executive staff who focus on self-evaluation and communication.

We record all conversations. The recordings are for internal use only, to aid in writing our conversation summaries. If you prefer not to be recorded, please let us know in advance so that we can arrange for an ACE volunteer to attend the call and take notes.

3.2 | Content and Preparation

Please set aside at least one hour for our conversation. Your evaluation liaison will be prepared with a list of 15–20 open-ended questions. These questions will cover topics such as:

- What changes has your organization made in the past year?
- What are your organization's goals for next year?
- What are your organization's overarching goals?
- Did your organization meet its fundraising goal last year?

These questions should not require any preparation. You are welcome to follow up with us after the call to provide any further information you want us to know. Occasionally, we are not able to cover all topics during a one-hour meeting. In this case, we will send you the remaining questions in a follow-up email.

3.3 | Written Summary

After our conversation, an ACE volunteer will listen to the call recording and transcribe a summary. Summaries will be edited for consistency once all calls are complete. Four to eight weeks after our conversation, we will send you the written summary of the call. Your organization will have a week-long opportunity to make edits or request that we remove sensitive information, and then we will ask you to approve the call summary for publication on our website. We publish conversations together with our reviews in November.

Exploratory Reviews

At this stage in the evaluation process, we may elect to write a short, “exploratory” review of your organization. This may happen if, for example, we think that your charity seems promising but that it will be in a stronger position for a full review next year. If your organization is selected for an exploratory review, we will notify you in early August that we will not require any further information from you. We will send you a draft of the review by the end of October 2018. You will have an opportunity to correct any factual errors and request that we remove sensitive information from the review. We will then seek your approval for publication.

Here are several examples of our exploratory reviews:

- ACE’s 2017 review of the Federation of Indian Animal Protection Organizations
- ACE’s 2017 review of Vegan Society Austria
- ACE’s 2016 review of the Animal Welfare Institute

If your organization has been selected for exploratory review, you may wish to skip to the section of the handbook entitled “Our Continuing Relationship.” Otherwise, your organization will proceed to Stage Two of the comprehensive review process, detailed below.

STAGE TWO: INFORMATION AND DOCUMENTS

To supplement and corroborate information gathered during our conversation, we will request several other sources of information about each comprehensively reviewed charity. Your organization is encouraged to start preparing this information as soon as you are invited to participate in the evaluation process.

4.1 | Requested Information

We will request information from each charity, including but not limited to:

- The primary outcomes your organization achieved in 2017–2018 (examples of documents in which charities have listed their accomplishments can be found here and here)

- A detailed breakdown of your budget and time allocation by activity, in combination with what you see as the main achievements of each activity (examples of documents in which charities have described their budget can be found here and here)
 - The amount of restricted donations your organization received in the past year (if any)
 - The names of any revenue-generating programs and how much revenue they generated in the past year
 - If you operate in multiple countries, your spending totals for each country
 - The details of any major grants received in the last two years (i.e., anything greater than 20% of your current budget)
- A list of board members and brief descriptions of their occupations or backgrounds, if this information is not available online (job titles/industries or links to LinkedIn are sufficient)
- Your organization's strategic plan (if you have one)
- A list of your organization's current staff members and their department/job title (or a list of your core volunteers, if you don't have paid staff)

To ensure that we have adequate time to draft all of our reviews, we request that you send us the above information within two weeks of receiving our invitation to participate in our evaluation process. If that schedule won't work for your organization, just let us know and we will try to accommodate you. Please feel free to share any additional information or documents that you feel demonstrate your successes or impact. The deadline for providing additional documents is August 21, 2018.

4.2 | Format and Publication of Documents

We generally plan to publish the documents containing the above information so that we can easily cite them in our reviews. If any of the information in those documents is confidential, you have two options. First, you can highlight all confidential information and we will remove it before publication. Second, you can send us two copies of each document: one that contains confidential information (for our internal use) and one that does not (for publication). If necessary, you may send us documents that are entirely confidential.

We know that editing is time consuming, so please don't worry too much about the format or appearance of the documents you send us. Our research editor will copyedit all materials and format them for consistency before publication. As with all materials pertaining to your organization's evaluation, we will send you the edited versions of your documents ahead of time and publish them only with your approval.

4.3 | Other Corroborating Information

We may seek other sources of information to corroborate claims made by leadership during the charity evaluation process. For instance, we may seek news reports and other publicly available information to corroborate information about events that your charity organized. If you use a media monitoring service to track mentions of your charity in the press, we may ask to see copies of the reports, though furnishing this information is optional for your charity.

We also plan to conduct two confidential calls with staff and/or volunteers at your organization, in addition to sending a culture survey to your organization for administration to a core group of staff and/or volunteers. These strategies are part of our ongoing effort to address systemic problems in the animal advocacy movement by providing animal advocates with a safe, anonymous way to discuss problems in their workplace. We also hope that our conversations with and surveys of advocates can teach us about what works well in the promotion of healthy work cultures.

Participation in our survey is not mandatory for your staff, and the administration of the survey is not mandatory for your organization. However, if we are not able to investigate your charity's culture through our survey, we may seek to do so in other ways. For instance, we may request to see the results of surveys your organization has conducted internally, or we may conduct a greater number of confidential calls with your organization's staff.

4.4 | “Questions for Further Consideration”

We may send your organization a list of questions that are written from a more critical (rather than simply information-seeking) perspective. Please don't take these questions to reflect ACE's attitude towards your organization. We simply try to anticipate some of the intelligent, probing, and often critical questions we may receive from our community about your organization so that we can address them in the review. We also aim to give you the opportunity to provide your perspective on complex issues. We will compose the answers to these questions using a combination of relevant information we have gathered and citations of any responses you may have given us. For this reason, you needn't write fully developed answers on your own.

STAGE THREE: FEEDBACK AND APPROVAL PROCESS

Though our schedule is subject to change, we plan to send comprehensively reviewed charities a draft of their review in October. All charities will have one week in which to correct any factual errors and/or request that we remove confidential information from the review, though we understand that some discussion of more complex issues may extend beyond one week. If your organization is unable to send us your initial feedback within a week, please let us know as soon as possible so that we can make every effort to accommodate your schedule.

When you receive the draft of your review, please bear in mind that all of our reviews, even reviews of our Top Charities, contain critical content. Our role is not to “sell” any particular organization to our community, but to provide honest, detailed reviews of each organization.

After all, it's our honesty and transparency that lend credibility to the positive statements we do make. Also remember that your review was written alongside many others, which were all created through the same process and using the same format. The format may or may not have changed significantly from those used in previous years, but we assure you that it is consistent with all reviews written during the same year.

If you are not happy with our review of your organization for any reason, you may choose to withdraw it from publication. We will simply list the name of your organization on our full list of charities with a brief note about the stage in the evaluation process at which your organization withdrew (see section 8.2 and section 8.6 for more information).

STAGE FOUR: PUBLICATION

When we send the draft of your organization's review, we will also notify you of your organization's recommendation status. Your organization may or may not be selected as a Top or Standout Charity. We select two kinds of Standout Charities: Special Interest and General Interest. You can read more about our recommendation categories on our website.

We ask that you please keep the contents of your review (along with your recommendation status) confidential until publication. We publish our updated reviews each year on the night before Giving Tuesday: this year that will be Monday November 26, 2018.

If we recommend your organization as a Top or Standout Charity, we will send you ACE-approved 2018 "badge" graphics for use in your promotional materials, newsletters, websites, or however you see fit. Here are our 2017 badges:

PART THREE | USEFUL INFORMATION

OUR CONTINUING RELATIONSHIP

We hope that each new evaluation is the beginning of a long working relationship with each charity. If we select your organization as a Top or Standout Charity, we will promote it for the next year, featuring it on our website, in our promotional materials, on social media, and in presentations. We will encourage the public to donate to your organization as one of the most effective animal advocacy organizations in the world.

Even if your organization is not selected as a Top or Standout Charity, we may reach out to you to participate in our interview series, to provide feedback on our research, or to be featured in a blog post. Occasionally, we even help connect donors with charities that we have reviewed but not recommended, if they are a very good fit. We are always looking for new ways to involve a broad range of charities in our work and to promote many different ways of helping animals.

If you like, please feel free to contact us throughout the year with updates on your accomplishments. We love to hear from you! We carefully keep track of all information you send us, though we generally update our reviews only during our standard review cycle each year.

7.1 | ACE's Recommended Charity Fund

If we select your organization as a recommended charity, we will not only direct donors towards your organization; we will also actively fundraise on your behalf. In addition to collecting donations for our Top Charities through our website, we collect donations to a Recommended Charity Fund, which we distribute among our Top and Standout Charities. This fund is distributed in January and July of each year and is based on our recommended charities' room for more funding, how much money is in the fund, and how effectively we feel each charity would use the funding.

7.2 | Tracking ACE-Influenced Donations

If your organization is selected as a Top or Standout Charity, we request that you help us track donations that are influenced by ACE's recommendation of your work. We appreciate your cooperation in helping us evaluate our own impact as a nonprofit organization. Please take a few minutes to review our donation tracking standard operating procedures for Top and Standout Charities for more details.

7.3 | Following Up on Your Organization's Room for More Funding

Each June, we follow up with our Top Charities about their room for more funding. If your organization is a Top Charity, we will simply ask for your best estimate of how much your organization has raised in funds since our previous check-in. Note that we are interested in your total revenue; there is no need for this update to distinguish donations influenced by ACE from other donations. If, based on your fundraising success, we're concerned that your organization may have limited room for additional funding prior to our next recommendation update, we may reach out again to discuss our questions about your current plans for growth. After each follow-up, we plan to write a blog post to update our community about the room for funding at our Top Charities, since this is something about which we are often asked.

7.4 | Review and Recommendation Updates

We generally do not update our reviews or change our recommendations outside of our annual evaluation process. We do, however, reserve the right to remove parts of a review, archive a review, and/or rescind a recommendation in the event that a major change occurs at one of the charities we've evaluated or we discover highly relevant new information. We will make every effort to contact the charity in question to verify the relevant facts and notify them of our decision before making any such change.

7.5 | Schedule of Subsequent Reviews

If your organization is selected as a Top Charity in 2018, we expect to review it again in 2019. If your organization is selected as a Standout Charity in 2018, we expect to review it again in 2020. If we comprehensively review your organization but do not select it as a recommended charity in 2018, we may ask to review it again in 2021. If you would like us to update our review of your organization sooner than scheduled, please let us know by June 1st of the year in which you hope to be reviewed. Additionally, please let us know about any major changes at your organization that you think may contribute to the need for an update.

POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

Note: A complete description of Animal Charity Evaluators' policies is available on our website. Here, we describe those aspects of our policies and procedures that are directly relevant to our evaluation process.

8.1 | Participation in the Evaluation Process

We're always glad to hear that a charity has chosen to participate in our evaluation process. Please know that we will make every effort to evaluate your organization fairly and in line with our policies and procedures. To ensure consistency between reviews, we evaluate every comprehensively reviewed charity according to the same seven criteria. Each criterion is thoroughly researched and supported by evidence and reason. Nearly our entire research team participates in drafting each review. Prior to publication, we solicit feedback from other parties, including our Executive Director, a committee of board members, external specialists, and you—the charity under evaluation. We understand that you are the expert on your own organization, and we value your input because it helps us to draft a review that accurately reflects your work.

8.2 | Declining Evaluation

If you decline to participate in our evaluation process, we—by default—list your charity on our website with the note “Declined to be Reviewed.” If you would like to select 1–3 reason(s) for declining (provided in section 2.2) we would be happy to include them on your charity’s page on our website. If you do not respond to our invitation to be evaluated, we will simply write that your organization “did not respond to our invitation.”

Listing all of the charities we consider on our website serves at least two purposes. First, it is consistent with our commitment to being transparent about our decision-making process. Second, it indicates to our community whether we have actively chosen not to write a review for a particular group, whether they’ve declined to be reviewed, or whether we’ve never considered that group. That said, if your organization would prefer not to be listed on our website, simply let us know and we will remove you from our list.

8.3 | Conflicts of Interest

We maintain a strict Researcher Conflict of Interest Policy, which is detailed on our website alongside all individual staff disclosures. Serious conflicts of interest (e.g., previous employment or close personal friendships with members of an organization) disqualify the researcher in question from participating in any aspect of the evaluation of a particular organization. Minor conflicts of interest (e.g., casual volunteering or most donation histories) are publicly acknowledged, though in general we expect these not to interfere with our standard evaluation procedures.

In addition to our researcher conflict of interest policy, we also have a policy to prevent conflicts of interest arising from donations. Should ACE receive a donation from an individual strongly tied to a recommended animal charity, the donation will be returned, and said individual will be directed to the section of our website that addresses this issue. ACE will not apply for grants from organizations that could be considered for future recommendations.

If you believe that your organization has a conflict of interest with any member of our staff or board and you do not see it reflected on our disclosures page, please contact our Charity Evaluation Manager, Director of Research, or Executive Director.

8.4 | Sensitive and Confidential Information

During the evaluation process, you may wish to share information with us that is not yet public and that you wish to remain confidential. There will be many opportunities for you to share such information, and for you to notify us of its confidential nature. We will never disclose information that we understand to be private—neither in our reviews nor in our conversations with donors. We will send you our evaluation of your organization prior to publication, so you will have an opportunity to review it for any information you would prefer not to include in the published version.

Our commitment to honoring confidentiality extends to most circumstances surrounding your participation in our evaluation process. For example, if you choose not to participate in our process for reasons that you prefer not to publicize, we will not disclose those reasons to third parties.

8.5 | Approval of Publication

We will not publish a review of your organization without the explicit permission of your appointed charity representative. By approving a review for publication, you agree to its use on our website and in our promotional material. You also agree that we may share information that appears in the review in our conversations with donors. We may also use information that appears in the review in other materials, like a charity comparison chart or charity quiz.

If you wish, you may quote parts of the review or link to the entire review on your website or in your promotional materials. You may also publish a response to the review in your own materials.

8.6 | Withdrawal from Publication

All organizations are free to withdraw from our evaluation process at any time, for any reason. If your organization chooses to withdraw in a given year, we will not disclose any information we acquired about your organization during that year’s evaluation process. This includes the reason(s) for your withdrawal, should you wish for them to remain confidential.

We will, however, note the approximate stage of the evaluation process at which your organization withdrew participation. For example, one of the following notes might appear on our website next to the names of withdrawn charities:

- Withdrew from evaluation before we began drafting our review
- Withdrew from evaluation before we completed an exploratory/comprehensive review
- Withdrew from evaluation after viewing a draft of our exploratory/comprehensive review

If you would like us to publish a reason for your withdrawal from publication, you may select a reason from section 2.2, or we can state that you believe our review “misrepresented and/or misvalued” your organization.

8.7 | Mutual Non-Disparagement Agreement

In choosing to withdraw from publication, you agree to enter a mutual non-disparagement agreement with Animal Charity Evaluators. We promise not to make public evaluative claims about your organization in the case of your withdrawal, so we ask that you make a similar commitment to us. This agreement is designed to protect our organization; because we maintain the confidentiality of all information gathered during discontinued evaluations, we would not be able to respond if a charity made disparaging statements about us after their withdrawal—even if those statements were false.

Your agreement not to disparage Animal Charity Evaluators means that you will not make any negative evaluative statements (written or verbally) about our work during the evaluation process from which you withdrew. Examples of negative statements include (but are not limited to):

- Claims that our unpublished evaluation of your organization was poorly conducted or poorly written
- Claims that our unpublished evaluation of your organization would cause harm to the animal advocacy movement
- Claims that we lack expertise or are otherwise ill-equipped to do our jobs

While, in the case of your withdrawal, we ask that you do not make negative evaluative statements of our work, you are welcome to make factual statements about your withdrawal from our evaluation process. For instance, you may state that you chose to withdraw from evaluation because you disagreed with our review or because you believe we misunderstood your work.

8.8 | Donor Privacy Policy

ACE will distribute donations and share donor contact information with our recommended charities so long as they maintain strict adherence to our donor privacy policy. Charities are required not to share, sell, or rent a donor’s information with any other entities without first obtaining the donor’s permission.

8.9 | Participation Grants

We administer participation grants to all organizations that make a “good faith effort” towards the publication of a review. Allowing us to publish a review of your organization is not a requirement for receiving a participation grant. Charities that participate in our exploratory review process will receive a participation grant of $500, and charities that participate in our comprehensive review process will receive a participation grant of $2,000.

Participation grants are administered by our Director of Operations soon after the release of our updated reviews. Organizations may choose to have their grant sent by check or by bank transfer. For a check, we will need to know (i) who to make the check out to, and (ii) your organization’s mailing address. For a bank transfer to organizations in the U.S., we will need to know the following information about your organization’s bank account: (i) routing number, (ii) account number, and (iii) account type. We will also need to know the name of the account, your organization's physical address, and a contact name and email address. Organizations not in the U.S. may only choose a bank transfer for amounts of $500 or less, and we will need to know your bank account details, physical address, contact name, and email address.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

1. Where will ACE's review of our organization be published?

All of our reviews are published on our website. We also promote our recommended charities in our Guide to Effective Giving, our newsletters, and other promotional material.

2. How long does the evaluation process take? What deadlines will you have for our organization?

The evaluation process lasts from July until November. Most of that time, however, our team is doing the work—not yours! We require four basic stages of participation from the charities we evaluate. First, we ask to have a conversation with one or more members of your leadership team by July 20, 2018. We will also ask you to send us some documents and answer some follow-up questions within about two weeks. In mid- to late-October, we will ask you to spend up to a week providing feedback and approval of your review. Finally, around the time of review publication (November 26, 2018), we may ask you to implement donation tracking and to send us your contact details so that we can administer your participation grant.

According to our most recent survey of charities we have comprehensively evaluated, participating in our evaluation process takes about 30 hours, on average. If you find that your organization is spending significantly longer than that, please let us know so we can discuss ways to reduce your time commitment.

3. How does being evaluated help our work? Will we be compensated for our time?

As you know, many donors are looking for independent charitable impact reviews, and ACE is one of the resources they turn to for thorough reviews of animal charities. Having a review of your organization on our website will strengthen the trust that your current and potential donors have in your work, because it indicates that you are interested in evaluating your impact and effectiveness.

This year, we are happy to offer small grants to compensate you for your time in participating in the review process. We will be sending grants of $500 to those charities that participate in our shorter (exploratory) reviews, and we will be sending grants of $2,000 to those charities that are selected for comprehensive review.

4. My organization is very busy at this time of year. Can a certain aspect of the evaluation process be delayed a few weeks? Can it be delayed until spring?

We will make every effort to accommodate your organization's schedule, but there are certain deadlines that we are not able to move. We publish all reviews by Giving Tuesday each year, and they must be completed well in advance so that our communications team has time to format and publish them. If you'd like to request a deadline extension that would not interfere with our November publication date, please email your evaluation liaison to inquire.

5. Can my organization be evaluated next year instead of this year?

We would be happy to add you to our list of charities to consider next year. If we invited you to participate in our evaluation process this year and you chose to wait, it's fairly likely that we will invite you to participate again next year. However, since there may be time constraints or other factors that we are not able to anticipate or control, we cannot guarantee that we will select your organization for evaluation next year.

6. Can my organization be evaluated both this year and next year?

Generally, we evaluate our Top Charities every year, our Standout Charities every other year, and other charities every three years or more. Unless you are selected as a Top Charity, then, it's unlikely that we will evaluate your organization both this year and next year. However, you should always feel free to keep us apprised of major changes at your organization, and we may choose to reevaluate your organization sooner than scheduled.

7. Will Animal Charity Evaluators publish sensitive or confidential information about my organization?

We will never disclose any information about your organization without your explicit permission. You will have an opportunity to read our review of your organization before publication.

8. Can my organization withdraw from evaluation at any time?

Yes. The entire evaluation process is optional, and your organization may withdraw at any time. In line with our commitment to maintaining transparency with our donors, we list the status of all organizations we work with on our website. If your organization withdraws from the evaluation process, we will list it on our website with the note: "withdrew from the evaluation process." We may also list the approximate stage in the process at which you withdrew.

9. If we are selected as a Top or Standout Charity, for how long does that status last?

Top Charity status is reevaluated every year. Standout Charity status is reevaluated every other year. We reserve the right to revoke either status in the event that we uncover significant new information about a Top or Standout Charity during the year.

10. Can my organization decline to be listed on Animal Charity Evaluators' website?

While charities can decline to be listed on our website, we strongly prefer to list all charities we invite to participate in the evaluation process. Alongside the name of each organization, we write a note about whether the organization was evaluated, declined, or withdrew from the evaluation process, or did not respond to our invitation. Publishing this information helps us maintain transparency about our process, and we feel it is immensely helpful for our donors.
