With others sectors, within India, we have also developed connections with the environmental, conservation, education, health, waste management, human rights sectors and continue to focus on building alliances with other movements—to find ways to connect, synergise, and collaborate. We regularly run programmes in partnership with others and also host events and provide a platform for leadership of different movements to build connections with each other.

2.7 | In the past three years, has your organization worked with any external advisors or consultants? Please provide details.

Yes, for each of our departments we engage with advisors to ensure we have access to expertise, and we identify these from leadership from within and outside the movement. While there are several people we seek advice from, included below are the key points of contact for each area.
- Fundraising – heads of fundraising of 2 large NGOs in India advise us on this. One has been pro bono, the other on our board of trustees (and thus also pro bono).
- Campaigns – campaign head of foundation of a nobel prize winner (humanitarian), was engaged by us to help improve our campaign frameworks. He continues to closely advise us pro bono. We also reach out to senior campaigners across the globe for advice on strategy on various issues. Additionally, before starting any new campaign, we typically invite key leadership on that issue to meet/discuss before going ahead.
- Communications – communications strategist for greenpeace, and another significant NGO in India is supporting us in the development of our communication strategy. The ex-editor of one of India’s top newspapers is also a close advisor.
- Governance – We are members of Centre for Advanced Philanthropy which is a paid membership to get mentorship/advice/guidance on good governance and compliance. The head of CAP is India’s foremost expert in NGO governance.
- Organisational Development/HR – We have an OD consultant with 34 years of experience who we have retained for a year to do extensive work with us to ensure our OD/HR practices support our growth and HR. Prior to this, 2 years ago, we had also hired another OD consultant who guided us through a growth phase then.
- Research and Evaluation – We have reached out to animal advocates internationally who have expertise in this area to advise us on this, including Jessika Ava (Proveg), Jo Anderson (Faunalytics).
- Networking – We have strong links with British experts who have set up collaborative movements, networks, including social capital in practice.
